

To the Editor of the Times,

Concerning the three students targeted with the painted swastika event, I would like to add my voice to the recent reader's letter stating, "We cannot condone but we can educate."

Yes, we can educate all our students, K-12, in the necessity to embrace diversity; to learn that respect for differences is vital to world peace. We need to express our criticisms of others without violence. We need to seek humane ways of bringing about change. Failure to prevent violence is a threat to our planet earth, considering the lethal weapons available, particularly nuclear ones.

We must educate our children to use our intelligence to save our world.

Adele Vexler, MSW
C-20 Carver Place
Lawrenceville, NJ 08648
609-896-1988